

St. Luke Residents' Council gives to local agencies

Two local non-profit organizations are recent beneficiaries of the largess of residents at St. Luke Extended Care in Ronan. Dora Olson, president of the St. Luke Residents' Council presented a check for $200 to Gloria Kramer, vice-president of the Ronan Bread Basket and a $100 check to Pam Gibson, president of the Mission Valley Animal Shelter to aid their agencies. Brenda Jones, the operations manager at the shelter, was also on hand to accept the donation.

The council made up of residents in the extended care facility holds events throughout the year such as book sales and quilt raffles that help raise monies for worthy causes. Then they get together to decide how the money can best be used for the benefit of the community or the facility.
